

Nearly All Fatherhood, Job Deferments Are Abolished

Washington (UPI) — President Nixon abolished virtually all future occupational and fatherhood deferments from the draft Thursday, sought authority to induct college students and moved to perfect his 4-month-old lottery induction plan.

At the same time, the President announced steps he said would eventually lead to an all-volunteer Army but rejected for economy reasons a proposal by a presidential study commission that conscription be ended by June 30, 1971.

"From now on," Nixon said in a message to Congress, "the objective of this administration is to reduce draft calls to zero, subject to the overriding consideration of national security."

Because of the Vietnam war and other factors, he said, it was impossible to predict whether or precisely when conscription could be ended.

20% Pay Increase Asked

The Pentagon said the draft law should be extended for at least two years, meaning an all-volunteer force would not be created at least before mid-1973. But Nixon said that to start making the armed services more attractive for potential volunteers, he was asking Congress for a 20% pay increase for all enlisted men with less than two years' service, effective next Jan. 1.

For a recruit, the lowest rank in the Army, that would mean a boost from $124.50 a month to $149.40, plus food, housing and other benefits. For a sergeant with less than two years' service, it would mean an increase from $275.40 a month to $330.60.

Meanwhile, the President:

—Ordered an immediate halt to the granting of all job deferments, including farm work. Young men currently holding such deferments will keep them and those who applied for them before Thursday will remain eligible. There are 500,000 persons with these deferments.

—Ordered a similar halt to the granting of all paternity deferments, except in cases where a local board determined that drafting a father would create an extreme hardship on his family. As in the case of job deferments, the elimination of paternity deferments is not retroactive.

—Asked Congress to repeal a provision it wrote into the 1967 Selective Service Act that guarantees to every college student a deferment for four years or until he is 24 years old, whichever comes earlier. Should Congress remove the stricture, Nixon said he would promptly issue an executive order that would bar student deferments except for youths holding them as of April 22. Those students would be covered as before. Students who enter acquire deferments after April 22 — such as those planning to enter college next fall — and are ultimately selected for the draft would be permitted to complete the semester before they are inducted. Students enrolled in ROTC programs could postpone their active military service until after graduation.

—Through a combination of a congressional and presidential action, Nixon will try to resolve some of the confusion and inequities in his lottery plan.

At present, an annual drawing of birth dates determines the sequence under which eligible 19-year-olds are to be called after they reach 20. But because birth dates and available registrants are not evenly distributed among the country's 4,100 draft boards, some boards must dip deeper into the pool than others to meet their local monthly quotas.

Local Quota Repeal

To produce a more "equitable" method, Nixon said he would ask Congress to repeal a provision of law requiring local quotas. He then would authorize the Selective Service System to issue monthly national calls.

Thus, for example, all youths with the sequence number 185 would be inducted, regardless of how few or many were taken from a community, until the military's total monthly requirement was met.

The President's message was the result of draft and volunteer Army studies by the Pentagon, the White House, the Selective Service System and a special commission headed by former defense secretary Thomas S. Gates Jr.

Environmental Planning Urged

By TOM EKVALL
Star Staff Writer

The need for environmental planning in cities was stressed Thursday at the annual E-Week Convocation at the University of Nebraska.

Charles Blessing, director of city planning for Detroit, said city officials, architects and developers should give primary consideration to what effect the appearance of a planned building or public improvement would have upon the total environment of the city.

Blessing pointed out that all too often little or no consideration is given, thus resulting in a mismatch of buildings and land uses as well as an unattractive area.

Positive Result

The positive result of environmental planning, he said, can be seen in those cities where people remark how attractive an area looks.

"People marvel about the appearance of mountains," said Blessing, who added that there is no reason why people should not be impressed by the appearance of a well-planned city.

He noted that the appearance of buildings is often looked upon as a reflection of one's civilization.

Blessing, who holds university degrees in architecture, engineering and city planning, showed slides of examples of good and poor environmental planning.

Becoming Aware

The city planner said "people are becoming suddenly aware" of the aesthetics of their communities.

He noted that in San Francisco, a freeway program was de-emphasized after a number of people decided the appearance of the skyline was more important than the use of the freeway to travel to places faster. The freeways had marred the view of the skyline, he said.

Blessing said the people there convinced public officials to spend more money for improving the bay area transit system instead of building freeways.

Cities 'Turned In'

He also added that more cities "are becoming tuned in on what is wrong with the environment and what needs to be done right."

The city planner said afterwards in an interview that he was "highly pleased" that Lincoln has an urban design and natural beauty committee which consists of architects, citizens and city officials.

During his speech at the convocation, Blessing had called for a team approach to the design of the city and to individual projects in particular.

Should Work Together

He said that planners, engineers, architects and behavioral scientists should work together.

Previously, Blessing said behavioral scientists would study a project after its completion and make criticisms about what they felt was wrong.

Criticism of plans for a project should come before rather than after the project is completed, he urged.

Meetings Being Planned

Blessing said meetings are already being planned to bring together urban designers and behavioral scientists to discuss urban design.

His major activities in city planning and architecture include the planning of the new town of Hill, N.H., the comprehensive urban renewal plan for the inner-city of Detroit and the Detroit riverfront, and the development of a 100-square-mile central area plan for Chicago.

Commenting on the recent Detroit riots, Blessing said "it will be a long time before one city will take lightly getting at the answers" of urban problems.

State Welfare Chief Resigns

. . . Irregularities Rumored

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann announced Thursday the resignation of State Welfare Director Harold J. Strode effective immediately. Tiemann said State Administrative Services Director Robert McManus would assume the interim direction of the Department of Public Welfare until a replacement for Strode is named.

The 33-year-old Strode had been chief of finance and administration until elevated to the $17,500-a-year director's post some seven months ago by the governor.

Strode succeeded McManus, who was named to head the Department of Administrative Services. He was the fifth welfare chief named during Tiemann's administration.

In tendering his resignation, Strode stated he has "other opportunities which simply cannot be passed," according to a statement released by the governor's office.

Strode's surprise resignation came amid unconfirmed reports of expense voucher irregularities involving airplane trips made by Strode and other department personnel in recent months.

One reported trip involved a $65-an-hour chartered airplane flown by Strode on a business trip to Washington, D.C. and Fort Lauderdale, Fla., with a weekend stopover in the Bahamas Islands.

Strode reportedly earned a private pilot's license during his tenure as welfare director.

He was unavailable for comment Thursday. State Auditor Ray C. Johnson confirmed that his office is in the process of auditing the welfare department, but declined any comment on reports of irregularities.

Many of the trips over the state to confer with county administrators and to out-of-state conferences were made in chartered aircraft flown by Strode and other department personnel.

Cosmic Rays May Be Worse In Space, Meteorite Reveals

Washington (AP) — Scientists reported Thursday that a 35-pound meteorite that fell near Lost City, Okla., last January has provided valuable new information about space.

They said it has yielded the firmest evidence yet concerning the intensity of cosmic rays far beyond the sun — raising the possibility that manned spaceships venturing to planets beyond Mars might have to be armored against swarms of high-energy space bullets.

Coming from far beyond Mars, the meteorite struck the Earth in three pieces, the largest about 20 pounds.

Result Of Collision

It is estimated to have weighed about 500 pounds originally and is presumed to have been a fragment of an explosive collision between two huge objects some six million years ago. This theory, the scientists said, comes from calculations of the object's exposure to cosmic rays.

The meteorite was found by Gunther Schwartz of Lincoln, Neb., field director of a new Smithsonian meteor recovery project, in a snow-covered field outside Lost City on Jan. 10, six days after it flashed rather spectacularly as a fireball streaming down through the atmosphere.

It is the first meteorite in history for which the original orbit in space — and trajectory to the Earth — has been computed with high accuracy. Indeed it is only the second such meteorite for which even an estimated orbital and trajectory computation has been possible.

This is so because it is the first to have been photographed in flight by a special American meteor-tracking network set up only a few years ago. The only other recovered meteorite that was photographed in flight was one that fell in Czechoslovakia in 1959, but scientists said this was an accidental sighting using cameras designed for another purpose.

Pin Oak Trees 99c ea.
1 to 3 ft. Mr. B IGA, 48th & Van Dorn.—Adv.

From Beyond Mars

Scientists of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory at Cambridge, Mass., have calculated that the meteorite whizzed Earthward from an orbit some 65 million miles beyond the planet Mars. Dr. Philip J. Cressy of the Goddard Spaceflight Center in Greenbelt, Md., chairman of the session, told a newsmen:

"It's a known space probe . . . We know exactly its trajectory through the Earth's atmosphere, and we have a good orbit on where it came from. And right now, we do not have any Earth-launched space probe that has gone beyond the orbit of Mars." Cressy said analysis indicates that the intensity of cosmic rays increases by possibly up to 124% for each 93 million miles out from the sun.

Hickel Tells Earth Day Audience He Plans To Issue Oil Pipeline Right-Of-Way Permit

Washington (AP) — Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel flabbergasted conservationists Thursday by announcing during an Earth Day speech that he plans to issue a right-of-way permit for an oil pipeline across Alaska.

"It seems a funny thing to say on Earth Day," said James Moorman, attorney for the Wilderness Society.

"I think it was inappropriate," commented Lloyd Tupling, Washington representative of the Sierra Club.

Opposed By Conservationists

Conservationists oppose immediate construction of the proposed 800-mile pipeline for fear it would cause extensive damage to the Arctic tundra and possibly disrupt caribou migrations.

The right-of-way permit would authorize construction of a 390-mile road parallel to the pipeline from the Yukon River to Prudhoe Bay. The pipeline is planned to link Prudhoe Bay on the North Slope to Valdez.

Hickel made the announcement in an Earth Day speech at the University of Alaska in Fairbanks, assuring his listeners that he will "make certain the pipeline can never become an environmental disaster."

He declared the permit would be issued "as soon as terms and conditions have been agreed upon between the parties involved, and all requirements of law have been met."

Greeted Skeptically

He added that "the engineering and scientific experts on our technical advisory panel have established that the pipeline can be built with complete safety," a remark that was greeted with some skepticism by conservationists.

Adding to the confusion was a recent federal court order prohibiting Hickel from issuing the right-of-way permit until the complaints of three conservation organizations — Friends of Earth, Wilderness Society and Environmental Defense Fund — can be tried on their merits.

"This is a question that hangs me up," said Tupling. "A federal court judge has issued an injunction prohibiting Hickel from issuing a permit. Hickel certainly isn't going to defy a federal court injunction."

Tupling also questioned whether Hickel's technical advisory panel has resolved questions relating to possible environmental problems. He said conservation groups have a meeting scheduled next week with the U.S. Geological Survey to further discuss possible environmental problems.

Ignorance Manifest

Moorman said that Interior Department attorneys "indicated they didn't know the slightest thing" about environmental safeguards during the recent court hearing.

"They certainly didn't controvert our evidence. If they've got it, why didn't they introduce it?" he said.

George Anderson, Washington representative of Friends of Earth, said Hickel may have made the statement "to cheer up the Alaskan development people."

The Trans Alaskan Pipeline Systems has assembled an estimated $42 million of road construction machinery in the expectation of obtaining a permit soon. More than 200 miles of pipeline reportedly has been stockpiled.

"I know they (Hickel and Alaska Gov. Keith Miller) are under great political pressure in the state of Alaska to get this thing going," said Tupling.

Vienna — The United States and the Soviet Union continued to outline their respective posi-

Vietnam Sends Thousands Of AK47 Rifles To Cambodia

By The Associated Press

South Vietnam has transferred several thousand captured enemy assault rifles to the hard-pressed Cambodian government, the White House said Thursday.

The rifles were rapid-firing AK47s, the standard assault weapon used by the Soviet Union and Red China.

The Cambodian army has some AK47s but not nearly enough to meet the needs of its expanding army.

Via S. Viet Planes

The announcement by Ronald L. Zeigler, President Nixon's press secretary, said the transfer was made "with our knowledge and approval." He declined to say how they were delivered, but the State Department said they were sent in South Vietnamese planes.

South Vietnam also has helped Cambodia by sending 5,000 troops into eastern Cambodia, tearing up enemy supply bases.

The South Vietnamese are operating from 20 to 25 miles south of the provincial capital of Svay Rieng, which has been menaced by North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops only five miles away farther north, informed sources in Saigon reported.

20 Tons Of Munitions

The sources said the South Vietnamese in Cambodia continued Wednesday to overrun enemy supply bases, seizing 20 tons of munitions, five tons of medical supplies and 150 rifles. They reported killing 16 North Vietnamese apparently left to guard the bases. This biggest South Vietnamese operation inside Cambodia opened Monday.

U.S. officials on the frontier say they believe the South Vietnamese claims, because the government troops take pictures of their captures.

The Cambodian army, meanwhile, got its first morale boost since the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong turned on it last month.

Cambodian soldiers, wasting plenty of ammunition, marched into Saang only to find it deserted by the enemy. The town is 18 miles southeast of Phnom Penh and the enemy advance was a threat to the Cambodian capital. It was the nearest enemy approach to Phnom Penh.

Colonel Gets Angry

It took some urging to keep the Cambodian soldiers moving despite the lack of fire from Saang. The colonel who led them had to throw rocks at an armored car to get it moving and he later booted a reluctant soldier.

In Saigon, the U.S. Command said 12 American aircraft were shot down Tuesday and Wednesday, seven over South Vietnam and five over Laos. Two Americans were killed, 10 wounded, and one is missing.

One plane, an Air Force F4 fighter-bomber, was hit by anti-aircraft fire over north central Laos but made it back to within 14 miles of the runway at the Udorn airbase in Thailand. The two men aboard bailed out and were picked up.

Battle Deaths Told

The U.S. and South Vietnamese commands said 101 Americans, 740 government troops and 2,962 enemy soldiers were killed last week. The American battle deaths dropped by 40 from the previous week, South Vietnamese deaths represented a 35% increase and the number of enemy killed was about 500 lower.

In Jakarta, Indonesian Foreign Minister Adam Malik denied a report from Cambodia that Indonesia had agreed in principle to send military aid.

He said this was contrary to Indonesian policy because "we would like to solve the Cambodian crisis in a peaceful way."

At the same time, Malik told reporters that Indonesia, Thailand, the Philippines, Malaysia and Singapore, making up the Association of Southeast Asian Nations, had agreed to sponsor Indonesia's proposed Asian conference to try to maintain Cambodia's neutrality.

Vorster's Support Weakens

©The New York Times

Durban, South Africa — Premier John Vorster's governing Nationalist Party has been returned to power with an overwhelming majority in parliament.

But for the first time in 22 years of rule it has lost a significant amount of support (nine parliamentary seats) to the opposition United Party. The voting Wednesday reflected a substantial shift in a mildly leftwards direction among the white voters.

Vorster's Nationalists completely crushed the right-wing Reconstituted National Party formed last year by former minister Dr. Albert Hertzog. This group of rebel Nationalists who called for an end to diplomatic contacts with black African states and greater white supremacy at home failed to win a single seat. Its 79 candidates received only 50,000 votes between them.

The liberal Progressive Party's sole representative in parliament, civil campaigner Helen Suzman, was re-elected. Votes for 18 other Progressive candidates showed a substantial increase at the expense of the United Party.

With only a few predictable results from outlying areas to come, it was clear that in the new parliament, the Nationalist Party, which advocates territorial apartheid through creation of separate independent states to be called Bantustans, will have 117 seats.

The United Party, which resists fragmentation of the country and advocates representation in parliament for Africans by whites, will have 48. The Progressive Party, advocating a multiracial legislature elected on qualified franchise exercised by all races, will have one.

Hijackers Get Cold Shoulder From Cubans

Miami (UPI) — A shaken pilot flew back from Cuba Thursday and reported the Black Panther ex-convict and girlfriend who hijacked him got a chilly reception by the Fidel Castro regime.

Boyce Stradley, 56, of Gastonia, N.C., said a Cuban military official told him the Castro regime "did not want that type of people in Cuba," and that the hijacker and the young girl probably "would be shipped out of the country within two weeks."

Stradley, a strapping 200-pounder, flew the single-engine aircraft here from Havana and was greeted by a super-secret FBI reception at Miami International Airport. Agents ordered Stradley to taxi his plane to a fire station in the middle of the off-limits complex of runways, and then escorted him in a car to the customs and immigration facility.

Stradley was hijacked at Gastonia Wednesday night by a man identified as Ira David (Orrie) Meeks, 26, recently released from a New York prison where he had served time for armed robbery. North Carolina records show he earlier was convicted of manslaughter in the fatal shooting of his brother-in-law.

$3.6 Billion For Space Authorized By House

Washington (AP) — The House passed a $3.6 billion space authorization bill Thursday after rejecting a bid to knock out $190 million for a controversial space shuttle and station.

The measure, about $268 million over President Nixon's budget request, was sent to the Senate on a 229-105 vote.

The Senate Space Committee voted meanwhile to set a $3.3 billion spending ceiling for the space program in the year beginning July 1. This amount was only $17 million below the Nixon budget which was the lowest figure in a decade.

Rep. Joseph E. Karth, D-Minn., chairman of a House space science and applications subcommittee, led the attack on the space shuttle, charging there was a division over that proposed level of spending in the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Karth's move was defeated 53 to 53 after a letter was read from Dr. George E. Mueller, NASA associate administrator for manned space flight, calling the shuttle "the key to all future space activities, manned and unmanned."

The space shuttle, on the drawing board for the last half of this decade, is designed to ferry men and materials to and from Earth orbit after establishment of a 50 to 100-man space station.

The House blocked off any roll call vote on the Karth bid or other efforts at deeper cuts by agreeing to a token reduction of $30 million in the over-all program — $14.5 million from the Apollo man-to-the-moon effort and $15.5 million from space flight operations.

Nixon had proposed $956.5 million for the Apollo program but the House Space Committee increased this to $1.1 billion. The House then trimmed this by $14.5 million.

The over-all total compares with a $3.7 billion ceiling for the space program in this fiscal year when Congress actually appropriated about $3.69 billion.

All authorizations in the bill are subject to later funding by Congress.

Court Says Kopechne Record Should Be Opened To Public

Boston (AP) — The Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court said Thursday the transcript and inquest report on the death of Mary Jo Kopechne are now "public records," and should be opened promptly.

There was no indication of how quickly the papers would be released.

The court, acting swiftly after Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., filed an appeal through counsel for quick release of the impounded papers, also said it failed "to see any basis for the exercise of jurisdiction by the federal courts in these matters." Release of the documents from a Superior Court impounding order was delayed when a court stenographer, Sidney R. Lipman, who transcribed the inquest testimony, went to the federal courts with his contention that he alone had the right to make copies for news agencies and others interested.

The state high court in its latest ruling said the release of the papers had been "unreasonably delayed" and ordered them opened to the public scrutiny when not impounded.

Edward B. Hanify, counsel for Kennedy, petitioned the court for immediate release of the inquest report.

Salary Increases Granted Top University Administrators

University of Nebraska administrators will receive pay raises ranging between $1,000 and $2,500 next year, it was revealed Thursday.

The raises were included in the budget adopted by the Board of Regents Wednesday but were not mentioned at the Omaha Regents meeting or indicated in budget materials provided to the news media.

Dr. Cecil Wittson, president of the NU Medical Center at Omaha, will become the highest paid official for 1970-71. He was awarded a $2,500 raise for a total of $40,500.

Wittson's salary will be $500 more than Chancellor D. B.

Varner's pay, set at $40,000 when he was hired last February and not changed for 1970-71. However, Varner also is provided a home in Lincoln by the University Foundation.

Dr. Joseph Soshnik, president of the Lincoln campuses and outstate activities, also received a $2,500 raise, increasing his salary to $35,500 for next year.

Dr. Kirk Naylor, president of the University at Omaha, will receive $33,200, a raise of $1,500.

Pay raises approved for the other top administrative officials were: —Dr. Merk Hobson, executive vice chancellor, up $1,000 to $36,000.

—Dr. G. Robert Ross, vice chancellor for student programs and corporation secretary, up $2,000 to $32,000.

Barnett Proposes Hike In Technical School Training

Lincoln legislative candidate Wally Barnett Thursday proposed creation of a statewide committee to help distribute information about job opportunities for people trained in technical schools.

"Technically trained people are more and more in demand and draw high level incomes," Barnett said.

"There is great need for college-educated people, but there is at least an equal need for technical school graduates." Barnett is a candidate for the 26th District seat in the Legislature.

Funeral Directors Also Face Criticism

Funeral directors, like most sections of the "establishment," have been hit by criticism of American youth, the president of the National Association of Funeral Directors said in an interview Thursday.

And, he indicated, the criticism has served a good purpose by challenging funeral directors to re-examine practices and reaffirm commitments to serve humanity as well as their pocketbooks.

Joseph L. McCracken of Pana, Ill., in Lincoln to address the 84th annual convention of the Nebraska Funeral Directors Association, said that, although they care for the dead, the primary purpose of funeral directors is to aid the living in a time of grief.

The importance of such service is being increasingly emphasized by research into cases in which individuals were emotionally harmed during periods of stress after death of a close relative, McCracken said.

Being able to handle such situations is part of being a funeral operator, he said, and it is requiring increased education.

"Many of us in the business have learned about such things a step at a time," McCracken said, "but it's getting to the point that people coming into the business need more formal education all the time."

New Concepts

The challenge to the funeral business is forcing directors to think in terms of new ideas and concepts about funerals and services, he said.

"Just because your grandmother had a, quote, traditional funeral, unquote, doesn't mean that you're going to want the same thing for yourself," he said.

McCracken asserted that the many jokes about undertakers and funeral directors is a result of American society's tendency to deny and defy death.

"We're a symbol, and if you can laugh at us, then you can say, 'look, I'm not afraid of death,'" he said.

More Written

More has been written about the funeral business in the past six years than in all previous years put together, McCracken said, and much of it has been concerned with the cost of funerals.

The NFDA president asserted, however, that the cost of funerals has not kept pace with rising costs in other businesses.

He also claimed that very few funeral directors ever became wealthy through funeral business alone.

NCLU Opposes Nebraska Preventive Detention Plan

The Nebraska Civil Liberties Union has informed the State Constitutional Revision Commission that the NCLU opposes a proposal to allow preventive detention of certain persons awaiting trial.

The NCLU also said it would oppose adding attempted murder to those charges for which the court may deny bail. The state constitution currently specifies that bail may be denied only for treason or murder.

Both proposals, the NCLU said, "scorn the fundamental provisions of liberty and the essence of presumption of innocence."

"To hold a person in custody with a denial of bail is to punish a person presumed to be innocent," the NCLU said in response to preventive detention proposal.

When a person charged with an offense "is kept in detention and brought to his trial in handcuffs and physical custody, his case is plainly prejudiced in the eyes of the jury."

The NCLU noted proposals elsewhere for preventive detention have been justified on the basis of an emergency situation, "where long delays exist between arrest and trial, and with the thought that those free on bail during this period are likely to commit further crimes if they remain free until their trial."

Such problems do not exist in Nebraska, the NCLU said.

On the other proposal, the NCLU noted "there is no substantive penal offense in the State of Nebraska called 'attempted murder'" and suggested the proposal would "extract one segment" of various statutes and "make it non-bailable regardless of the circumstances of the crime charged."

The Constitutional Revision Commission had asked the NCLU to comment on the proposals, both of which would require changes in the state's bill of rights.

Ezra Solomon To Give Lecture At NU Monday

Dr. Ezra Solomon, Dean Witter, Professor of Finance at Stanford University, will give the first Gerald L. Phillippe Memorial Lecture at the University of Nebraska.

Solomon will speak at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the lower level auditorium in the Nebraska Union.

The annual lecture series has been arranged by the university's College of Business Administration in memory of Gerald L. Phillippe, a university graduate who became president of General Electric and was himself an expert in finance.

Solomon's topic will be "Financial Management, Profitability and Social Policy."

He will meet with students and faculty members of the College of Business Administration on Tuesday.

Tea Set Sunday To Honor Widow Of Former Slave

$100,000 To Go To San Clemente To Assist Police

Washington (UPI) — The Justice Department Thursday announced a grant of nearly $100,000 to help the 34-man police department of San Clemente, Calif., deal with special problems created by President Nixon's Western White House.

Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, who spent last August there with the President, said the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration had approved a $99,972 grant for "police improvement programs" in San Clemente, where Nixon bought a $340,000 ocean-side villa.

Brief Filed In Accident Suit

By Associated Press
An attorney for Morris Hill Thursday filed an answering brief with the State Supreme Court in a case which is before the court after a lower court dismissed a wrongful death suit against Hill.

The Sherman County District Court had dismissed a suit brought against Hill by attorneys for the estate of Ray C. Piper, who was killed Nov. 25, 1967 when struck by a car driven by Hill on State Highway 58 in Sherman County.

Piper had been helping his grandson, Tommy Piper, tow Tommy's car after the car had had an electrical failure. Tommy's car had gone out of control and pulled the elder Piper's car off the road. The two men had

By Nixon Cunning Maneuver
Paris (AP) — North Vietnam and its Viet Cong allies said Thursday that President Nixon's promised new massive troop withdrawals from Vietnam was a cunning maneuver designed to deceive the American public and pave the way for the permanent establishment of U.S. bases throughout Indochina.
Nixon's Monday speech, announcing the withdrawal of an additional 150,000 American troops over the next year, was the main theme of all speakers at the 64th weekly session of the Vietnam peace talks. No progress of any kind was recorded and the 15-month-old negotiating deadlock remained complete.
U.S. negotiator Philip C. Habib formally read into the conference record the essential passage of Nixon's speech, and invited the Hanoi and Viet Cong delegates to "consider it carefully in its entirety."
Habib told newsmen later he called on them to drop their intransigence and begin meaningful negotiations, but that they failed to respond.
South Vietnam's Pham Dang Lam expressed the Saigon government's approval of the new withdrawal.

He's almost got it made. A different hunk of youth on the make and rising fast. He wheels his camper wide open with one hand, keeps the other free for action.
But when he speaks, you listen. You wonder about the freaky things you hear and the people he raps with.
Then some rich dirt begins to spill about the doctor's murdered wife and they give this dude the broom—and he shakes up the place pretty good.

New Neo-Natal Unit Is A Boon To Infant Life

BY SYLVIA LEE

Approximately 3,000 babies are born in Lincoln every year. Most are healthy, a source of happiness and sleeplessness for their parents. About 125 of the newborn are not so lucky.

Suffering from birth defects, faulty metabolism, or premature birth these "high-risk" babies require special care to survive without the brain damage that results in mental retardation, epilepsy, or cerebral palsy.

By summer that care will be available for the first time in Lincoln in a neo-natal intensive care unit at St. Elizabeth Community Health Center. A committee of administrators, nurses, and doctors representing all three accredited Lincoln hospitals is planning the unit. Special consultants are neo-natologists from the University of Nebraska College of Medicine which now has the state's only intensive care unit for newborns.

The Lincoln facility also will serve all 17 Southeast Nebraska counties, where doctors expect to find an additional 200 patients annually.

In the past, high-risk babies have been transferred from outstate hospitals to the Omaha unit. An intensive care unit in Lincoln would eliminate much of the delay, expense, and inconvenience of transfer.

Other neo-natal cases have been treated in local hospitals unprepared to handle them, said Dr. Charles G. Erickson, Lincoln pediatrician who is chairman of the planning committee. He explained that nurseries and pediatrics wards lack the special intensive care equipment, while ordinary intensive care units lack the staff members trained in handling newborns.

The neo-natal unit was proposed by Lincoln physicians last summer, and endorsed by the Lincoln Hospital and Health Council in November. In March the three Lincoln hospitals agreed on the St. Elizabeth Community Health Center as the location for the unit.

Studies for the Lincoln Hospital and Health Council showed that while Lincoln's infant mortality rate, 1.4 per cent, was below the national average of 2.2 per cent, the local mortality rate for premature infants is alarmingly high—1.88 per cent, compared to the national figure of 1.08 per cent. Pediatricians estimate that neo-natal units can reduce the premature mortality rate to .8 per cent, Dr. Erickson said.

Neo-natal units in other cities have been successful in curbing infant deaths. The University of Utah Medical Center, for instance, operates a neo-natal intensive care unit even though its annual number of live births is only 900, one-third of the Lincoln total, and less than a fifth of the total for Southeast Nebraska.

The Lincoln neo-natal unit will be equipped with special electronic equipment—isolettes, resuscitators, monitors—scaled down to baby size, and staffed with the specially trained personnel vital in treating sick newborns, Dr. Erickson said.

Special training is necessary because the entire chemistry and physiology of a baby is different, he said. Oxygen and drug doses must be carefully calculated for a newborn baby, who might receive one-tenth or even one-twentieth of an adult dosage.

"The most important difference in treating the newborn is his inability to communicate his needs," Dr. Erickson stated. "For this reason, an experienced, observant nurse is one of the most important elements in the neo-natal care unit."

The two nurses on the planning committee, Sister Margaret Ann, nursery and post-partum coordinator at St. Elizabeth, and Mrs. Mary Merritt, head of the hospital's nursery, agreed that a great deal of experience and competence is necessary to detect changes in the condition of a sick baby.

Skin tone, color, feeding retention, respiration and heartbeat must all be carefully observed," said Mrs. Merritt, who has had over 10 years of experience in the field of infant care.

Electronic intensive care equipment refines the nurses's job, but one nurse is still needed for every two babies, said Sister Margaret Ann. Special monitors, adapted from the U.S. space program, keep track of heartbeat and respiration more accurately than the nurse can by simple timing and observation, according to Mrs. Merritt. An alarm in the monitor also frees the nurse to work with another baby.

Intravenous transfusions, important in treatment and in maintaining hydration, will be improved by an automatic infusion pump in the intensive care unit. The pump automatically regulates the number of drops per minute administered to the baby. "Piped oxygen and compressed air will be within reach of each isolette in the unit," Sister Margaret Ann said, as well as a special vacuum hose to remove obstructions to breathing. This equipment is vital in treating the premature infant with respiratory distress."

Respiratory distress syndrome, or hyaline membrane disease, is a serious condition common among premature infants whose lungs are insufficiently developed, Dr. Erickson said, and told us that the treatment consists of helping the baby to breathe with special equipment, and stabilizing his general condition for the 72 hours it usually takes for him to outgrow the condition.

Dr. Erickson further stated that premature babies in general have more problems than other infants, because of small size (less than 5½ lbs.) and immature body organs.

Babies whose mothers are diabetic or have had no prenatal care, twins, multiple births, and babies delivered by Caesarian section all have a greater tendency to prematurity, he said.

An immature liver, unable to control the level of bilirubin in the blood, may cause serious problems for the premature baby. Excess bilirubin, produced by hemoglobin, will destroy the baby's red blood cells causing him to develop the bright yellow skin and eyes of jaundice. Immediate transfusions are required to avoid death or brain damage, Dr. Erickson said.

Also treated by transfusion are blood disorders resulting from Rh or ABO incompatibility. When the baby's blood is a different type or has a different RH factor from the mother's, it may contain antibodies from her blood which also destroy red blood cells.

"In cases of congenital deformity," Dr. Erickson said, "surgery may be required. Occasionally a baby is born with an incomplete esophagus, no anal opening, or kidney or bladder defects which require immediate surgery." All these types of cases may be treated in the new intensive care center.

The mother as well as the baby is being considered in planning the neo-natal unit, and according to Dr. Erickson, "One job we'll have to do is get the mother and baby together."

There has been concern that the mother suffers psychologically from the long separation while her baby is under treatment, he said. Research has indicated that human mothers may subconsciously reject a baby, as animals are known to do when separated from their young," Dr. Erickson said.

Mrs. Merritt and Sister Margaret Ann also agreed that it is important to involve the mother in the baby's care, after he has progressed enough to leave intensive care.

Mizzou's Patchin Spurs To Top In Big Eight Conference Hitting

... RANKS SECOND BEHIND RILEY

Kansas City, Mo. — This was predicted to be a hitter's year in the Big Eight Conference and, during last weekend's rain-abreviated set of games, four of the established hitters in the league indicated solidly that apparently the thinking was right.

Sparting to the Big Eight top with the best day of his career was Missouri's all-conference catcher, Steve Patchin, who sprayed out four hits in four tries —one was a double. His spurge boosted his mark to .563, the loftiest average after three weekends of play for the league in the last seven years.

It was last season, as a freshman, the consistently successful Patchin finished second in the league's hitting race and approached a league mark with his 29 hits for the year. Now, with only four games behind him, Patchin ranks second in hits with nine. Ron Railey, who has played in three more games, leads with 10.

Iowa State's Larry Corrigan, last year's third-place hitter and last week's leader, maintained his pace with a .500 day, keeping his seasonal mark at .500, and leaves him tied with Oklahoma State's Terry Edwards and Iowa State's Ed Tadelman.

Edwards, too, didn't miss his few opportunities of the weekend, collecting three hits in four trips. It was last season that he helped the Cowboys to another Big Eight title with his .333 mark.

But still the biggest bruise of Big Eight pitching came from Kansas' John Riggins, who picked up five hits in seven trips to run his league mark to .353, after it stood at an even .100 last week.

Thus, Riggins joined the 16 in the Conference who are ping the ball at a .350 or better rate. Included are the four at .500 or better and four more between .400 and .500.

Still the pitching leader, and not too badly battered in the earned-run department though allowing 11 hits, is Iowa State's Mike Gillespie, who has a 0.50 ERA. Last week's co-leader, Oklahoma's Ron Hall, also gave up an earned run over the weekend, but he was on the losing end —the victim of three other unearned tallies — and now has a 1.04 ERA to go with his 1-1 record.

On a team basis, Iowa State's surprising hitters lead the league with a .339 mark, while Nebraska continues the best in the fielding (.956).

Kansas, meanwhile, just as surprising on the mound as Iowa State has been at the plate, leads the pitching derby this week with a 1.85 team earned-run mark. This compares with 2.25 of last week's leader, Oklahoma. The Jayhawk hurlers have held opponents to a composite .141 hitting average.

Husker Baseballers Travel

Columbia, Mo. — Nebraska's baseball team, currently enjoying a 7-5 record and a third-place spot in the Big Eight race with a 3-2 mark, faces Missouri here with a singleton today and a pair on Saturday.

Coach Tony Sharpe will toss his tough tandem of Glen Gilmore (2-1) and Paul Marke (0-1) in the first two games, then decide between Bruce Cramer (2-1) or Gene Stohs (2-1) for the finale.

Cramer has been a dazzler in relief, picking up two wins and posting a fine 1.69 ERA. Gilmore has the top ERA among the regulars with 1.89, while Stohs has a 2.85 and two complete games in three starts. Steve Schelphol leads the Husker batting attack with a .368 average. He also leads in runs (10) and is tied with Bob Griego in hits with 14.

Griego is really off and running so far in 1970, boasting nine stolen bases. Tommy Tidball is the home run leader with four, and also heads the RBI list with nine.

Limited Special Session Said Eyed By Carpenter

State Sen. Terry Carpenter has contacted the office of Secretary of State Frank Marsh regarding procedures for calling a limited special session of the Legislature on the initiative of the senators.

Marsh said the Scottsbluff lawmaker indicated in a telephone call Wednesday he desires the special session to deal with lifting the current 6% ceiling on urban renewal and housing authority bonds in Nebraska.

Because the rate is lower than the going federal rate, a number of Nebraska communities have been unable to market bonds to construct housing for low-income and senior citizens.

Marsh said that under state law, if 10 senators petition for it, a poll of all state senators will be undertaken by the secretary of state's office. If 29 senators say they wish the special session, it would be called.

Nebraska is one of a number of states distressed by the 6% bond interest limitation.

The U.S. Senate recently approved an amendment to a housing bill to give relief to such states until such times as the state legislatures in regular session can change the law, but House action also was needed on the relief amendment.

The League of Nebraska Municipalities has been pushing for a special session to deal with the bond interest matters and other subjects.

Some Campaign Signs Illegal

Campaign signs are not allowed in the public right-of-way, Supt. of Building Inspections Charles Seale said Thursday in regard to complaints his office has received about improperly placed signs.

Seale said signs are permitted on residential property providing such signs are no more than 24 square feet of rigid material or higher than six feet.

He said his office is notifying candidates whose signs violate the city ordinance.

The public works department will remove the signs if the candidates fail to voluntarily remove them.

Complaints of signs located in the area between the sidewalk and the street have been the most common instance of illegally placed signs.

Also illegal, he said, "are portable billboards located in residential areas." Complaints have been filed that one county candidate's portable billboard has been located on residential property.

Denney Scored For Supporting Certain Cutbacks

Democratic congressional candidate George Bill Burrows of Adams Thursday said it is "unfortunate" that First District Rep. Robert Denney has supported budget cuts in programs which assist Nebraska.

"Recent (news) releases by Congressman Denney have shown that the major share of federal assistance to Nebraska comes through agriculture, health, education and welfare," Burrows said.

"It is unfortunate that he has chosen these areas to trim money from the federal budget when casting his votes."

Since 1966, the cost of the federal debt has increased more than four billion dollars, mostly because of high interest rates, Burrows said.

"This is socialism for the rich who lend the money, and Congressman Denney has not waged battle against this," the Democratic aspirant said.

The entire payments to farmers from federal agricultural programs are "less than the increased cost of interest to the federal government," he noted.

Antarctic Boasts A Bust Of Stalin

Moscow (AP) — Lenin's bust now graces "the pole of relative inaccessibility," a Soviet Antarctic station.

Tass reported members of the 15th Soviet Antarctic expedition braved "a wilderness of ice abounding in dangerous ice cracks" to erect the monument to the father of modern communism on his 100th birthday anniversary Wednesday.
